

The Style Invitational

WEEK 13: ANAGRAMS = A MAN'S RAG

WOODY ALLEN = A LEWD LOONY
MARION BARRY = MY BRAIN-ROAR
THE WASHINGTON POST =
WET HOGS IN HOT PANTS
PRINCESS DI = DISS PRINCE

ALBERT GORE = GET REAL, BRO'
THE WHITE HOUSE = WHEE! HOT TUSHIE!
WILLIAM DONALD SCHAEFER =
A CLOWNISH LEADER FAIL MD.

What does it mean that Woody Allen's name is an anagram of "A Lewd Loony?" He had that name years before he became a famous groin-crazed, teen-diddling doodothead. Could it be that names are secret encoded clues to the true nature of people? That a clever anagrammist is not so much a creative genius as he is a "channeler"? Naah. He's just a wonk with a Scrabble set and a lot of time on his hands. This week's contest: Come up with a funny anagram for the name of a famous person or institution. All letters in the name must be used, and no letters may be left over.

First-prize winner will receive a huge American flag, a star-spangled banner too big for tasteful display anywhere except on the side of a mountain or perhaps in a polo stadium (a value of approximately $90).

Runners-up, as always, get the coveted Style Invitational Losers' T-shirts. Winners will be selected on the basis of humor, originality and relevance to the anagrammed name. Mail your entries to the Style Invitational, Week 13, The Washington Post, 1150 15th St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20071, or fax them to 202-334-4312. Entries must be received on or before Monday, June 7. Please include your address and phone number. Winners will be announced in three weeks. No purchase necessary. Employees of The Washington Post and their immediate families are not eligible for prizes.
