Style Invitational Week 1068: An iffy proposition; plus the 'X-and-Y' winners

Bob Staake for The Washington Post - Well, that's one way to make every game a home game on Opening Day — one "druthers" idea for our new contest, Week 1068. (See below this week's results.)

By Pat Myers, Published: April 17

Report from Week 1065: Pun and suffering

In Week 1065, we asked you to "slightly alter" some well-known phrase of the form "X-and-Y" and define the result. Some Losers had a novel idea of "slightly," analogous to "it is slightly uncomfortable when a bull elephant walks atop your sandaled foot": One entry "slightly" altered "bells and whistles" to "Bill and apostles"; another came up with "Juan's Am-Feral" from — but of course — "once and for all."

The Style Invitational

The Style Invitational is The Post's weekly humor/wordplay contest, serving up since 1993 an irreverent mix of highbrow and lowbrow -- haughty and potty -- in genres ranging from neologisms to cartoon captions to elaborate song parodies. A new contest appears at washingtonpost.com/styleinvitational every Friday.

NEW CONTEST FOR WEEK 1068: AN IFFY PROPOSITION

If I were commissioner of baseball, my first act would be to require that all teams' Opening Day games had to be played at home.

If I were Pharaoh, my first act would be to tell the royal hieroglyphics painter to stop portraying everyone in profile. For one thing, I have a very fetching smile.

While 203-time Loser Christopher Lamora has a pretty big-shot job heading up the L.A. passport office for the State Department (following a globe-trotting diplomatic career), he, like all of us, sometimes yearns wistfully for just a little chance to issue an imperious edict or two. (Except for the Empress, of course, who's, hey, the Empress.) So, in a pretty wide-ranging contest: This week: Suggest some humorous action that you would take if you were in someone's position, more or less in the form "If I were _____ my first act would be _____," as in Christopher's examples above. The wording could vary slightly; if a slightly different form yields a funnier sentence, go for it. Be concise; don't write a long paragraph.

Winner gets the Inkin' Memorial, the Lincoln statue bobblehead that is the official Style Invitational trophy. Second place receives — also from Christopher — a little tchotchke (actually, a fairly sizable tchotchke) he found at a flea market or something: It's a round container — perhaps a toilet paper cozy? — made of coils of white tissue paper to simulate the body of some small mammal (we guess a puppy) and topped with a ball of the same paper but with eyes, nose and mouth glued on (plus coils for ears and feet and, why not, a pink hair ribbon). To add insult (because that's what we do), the "neck" of the cozy has lost some of its shape, causing the head-ball to perch precariously over the tissue paper abyss. We value this prize at $98.27.

Other runners-up win their choice of a yearned-for Loser Mug or the ardently desired "Whole Fools" Grossery Bag. Honorable mentions get a lusted-after Loser magnet, either the Po' Wit Laureate or Puns of Steel. First Offenders receive a smelly tree-shaped air "freshener" (FirStink for their first ink). E-mail entries to losers@washpost.com or, if you were born in the 19th century, fax to 202-334-4312. Deadline is Monday, April 28; results published May 18 (online May 15). No more than 25 entries per entrant per week. Include "Week 1068" in your e-mail subject line or it might be ignored as spam. Include your real name, postal address and phone number with your entry. See contest rules and guidelines at wapo.st/InvRules. This week's honorable-mentions subhead was submitted separately by Mike Ostapiej and Jeff Shirley; the "Report from Week 1065" subhead is by Nan Reiner.
