Style Invitational Week 1083: Good thing there's no app for that

Plus the winning crazy rhyme-riddles from Week 1079

(Bob Staake for The Washington Post/Maybe this "cauli-tini" app wasn't such a great idea.)

By Pat Myers, Style Invitational editor July 31, 2014

(Click here to skip down to the winning questions answered in a rhyme from Week 1079.)

- An app for 1,001 great martini recipes using liquefied cauliflower.
- An app to make your phone sound an alarm when you start snoring at work.
- When a car approaching you has its high beams on, the app makes your windshield automatically screen the light — and curses out the other driver for you.

It's been six years since Apple started using the slogan "There's an app for that" to promote the iPhone 3 and the many big and little enhancements that users suddenly couldn't possibly do without. A few months ago, the company announced that the number of available iPhone apps had passed the 1 million mark.

Still, we have at least a tentative hunch that there are still some good ideas for apps that don't yet exist — and surely there are some bad ones as well. This week: Offer up an idea for either a humorously useful app or a humorously counterproductive one, as in the examples above; the second is by Loser Mike Gips, who woke up from his desk-chair daydream long enough to suggest this contest to us one afternoon.

TATELLI III. LIEU AND TENDEN MENNINGAL AND TENDEN DE LEGENDE NORMANDE DE ANDRE DE LEGENDE.

winner gets the Inkin Memorial, the Lincoln statue boodenead that is the official Style Invitational trophy. Second place receives two "Official Barves Bags" — airline-style barf bags decorated with a doctored logo of the Atlanta Braves, whose fans at Turner Field persist in doing the "Tomahawk Chop," waving their arms and foam hatchets and chanting ersatz-Indian-style, making the D.C. football team name positively reverent by comparison. The instructions on the bag, designed and made by Loser John Kupiec: "Spew your opinion of Tomahawk Choppers into bag. When bag is full, dispose properly by presenting it to a Tomahawk Chopper." The Braves play at Nationals Park Sept. 8-10. This prize will be awarded Aug. 28.

Other runners-up win their choice of a yearned-for Loser Mug or the ardently desired "Whole Fools" Grossery Bag. Honorable mentions get a lusted-after Loser magnet, either the Po' Wit Laureate or Puns of Steel. First Offenders receive a smelly tree-shaped air "freshener" (FirStink for their first ink). E-mail entries to losers@washpost.com or, if you were born in the 19th century, fax to 202-334-4312. Deadline is Monday, Aug. 11; results published Aug. 31 (online Aug. 28). No more than 25 entries per entrant per contest. Include "Week 1083" in your e-mail subject line or it might be ignored as spam. Include your real name, postal address and phone number with your entry. See contest rules and guidelines at wapo.st/ InvRules . This week's honorable-mentions subhead was submitted by both Jeff Contompasis and Tom Witte; Jeff also wrote "Misfit Wit" in the subhead introducing the results, while Tom also wrote the alternative headline in the "next week's results" line. MISFIT WIT: THE Q'S AND RHYMING A'S FROM STYLE INVITATIONAL WEEK 1079

For Week 1079, the Empress resurrected an ancient Invite contest and asked once again for you to write a question whose answer consisted entirely of rhyming words. Some of our contests over the years have produced satire so lacerating that debate ensued whether it qualified as humor. Well, Week 1079 is emphatically not one of these contests. It's just ingeniously silly fun.
