Style Invitational Week 1236: Portmanteaux faux — give us a fake ‘combination’ of words

Plus the winning captions for Bob Staake's cartoons

(Cartoons by Bob Staake/for The Washington Post)

“Do you love our president? Let’s hear an Amen!”DEGREE: Combines “degrading” and “twee.” “So what was it like to defend your dissertation in front of Professor Pomposity?” “Totally the third degree.”You'll have the pool all to yourself with this prize emoji-motif raft. (FIVEBELOW.COM)

This week's contest, suggested by classics scholar and 87-time Loser Ann Martin, combines a couple of the Invitational's frequent contest themes: It incorporates the idea of a portmanteau word, a word that's coined by combining two other words, along with our beloved practice of promulgating totally bogus explanations. This week: Explain — inaccurately but amusingly — how a real word is a combination of two or more words, with an illustrative sentence, as in the examples above, or some other funny way.Submit entries at this website: wapo.st/enter-invite-1236 (all lowercase).

Winner gets the Inkin' Memorial, the Lincoln statue bobblehead that is the official Style Invitational trophy — one of the last few before we come out with a new design. Second place receives, actually in season for once, a raft-size triangular brown pool float — in this case, we should call it a
