Lt. Hull Receives Less than Honorable NRARS Discharge

Adultery jokes not permitted by the UCHJ - Violation could bring time in Laugh-Laugh

Washington, DC -- A high ranking panel of NRARS officials today announced a virtual death sentence to the humor career of Lt. Sandra Hull by expelling her from NRARS with a less than completely honorable discharge. The panel members, who wish to remain anonymous, include Elden Carnahan, Chuck Smith, Joe Romm, Kevin Cuddihy, Paul Kondis, Mike Connaghan and Jan VerrEy (who despite rumors to the contrary are not dating according to their publishers).

"The bylaws are pretty strict concerning such matters" commented the panel's leader Relden Karnahan (whose name we have changed allowing the chairman to maintain his anonymity). "Particularly the unwritten bylaws, they're the toughest" added panel member Huck Smyth of Woodbridge. "And those are the ones she transgressed."

The panel was nearly unanimous although the vote did split along gender lines. The dissenting member, Jan BradEy, apparently cast her vote merely to spite Mick Khannaghan who voted for the expulsion. "At times the vote to them seemed more like a symbolic representation of their relationship" commented Chevy Kuddihy. "They just never seemed to care about the magnitude of the precedent being set nor the impact this humiliation would have on Lt. Hull. Personally I'm thrilled she got booted."

Former Lt. Hull could not agree less. "This is an outrage!" she claimed. "I've never seen these unwritten regs and they've never been enforced for anyone else. I mean Chuck told that one about the priest and no one's kicking him out now are they? (see related joke p3) This is just another example of the ruling class trying to keep the little people down!"

Chairman Karnahan dismissed the Lt.'s comments as the "ravings of a distraught and disgruntled officer who was negligent in her duties and failed to obey orders." When confronted by the polls which seem to indicate that the public believes there may be a double standard at work here Karnahan spat back "These chicks just don't get it!"

Let us hear from you! What's your opinion? Was Lt. Hull treated fairly or was she railroaded out of the service? Send your thoughts to: Hull's Fate c/o The Depravda Editor

Lt. Sandra Hull, the first woman to make a cockpit joke about the B1 bomber is not pleased with her recent discharge. Comments "Hell you can't get out of the hospital that quick."

Traveling Across Europe

A long overdue trip report by staff writer: John Kammer

Europe - Way back before I had ever usurped control of the Depravda Megacorporation, the previous editor and I had a slight falling out concerning reimbursement of my travel expenses for the European travel story I had written. Well the lawyers tangled for a while, depleting the Depravda coffers until finally everything was settled out of court to everyone's satisfaction with Ms. Fuller's sudden and unexpected disappearance. (In a related story the FBI has still not apologized to the murderer Elden Carnahan even though they cannot find the evidence he so cleverly hid).

Anyway, after taking the helm at Depravda and getting my proper reimbursement (which totalled over $6000 of your subscription dollars) I fully intended to run the article. Unfortunately we received a lot of better stuff to run than this drivel so as a responsible journalist I felt I had to go with those. But still with this article way overdue I knew I had to run it and I also knew it needed to be updated. So, with another $6000 of your hard-earned money I took a refresher trip to Europe and polished up the article a bit.

To start off I guess the thing I liked best about Europe is that everything is right there and easily accessible. In the morning when you arrive at customs you pay one reasonable price for daily admission to the entire continent. At the front of the continent is an amusement-style learning center. It became quickly clear why European children are kicking the butts of American children in math and science. On my last trip to Europe I got to see Michael Jackson as Captain E.O. However, on my more recent excursion they had apparently booted him out. No explanations were given.

As you can see from the handy travel map all the countries in Europe are close together. I found that my geography courses from grade school were so far off the mark as to be ludicrous. No wonder the European kids are kicking our butts at geography too. I'm beginning to think our education system sucks. Good think that we can right gooder than they are.

Anyway I toured Europe in a clockwise fashion going from Mexico to Norway to China to Germany to Italy to America to Japan to Morocco to the United Kingdom and finally to Canada. Sharp readers may notice I missed France. This was no accident. The people in France are just plain rude. Except the French maids. If you're going to get a maid I highly recommend a French one. But other than that leave France alone. I think that maids are probably the number one export of France. No doubt a significant contribution to their GNP. I just like the way they..... umm... clean.

Your trip in Europe concludes with a laser light show that I found delightful and fascinating. The laser beams arc across the entire continent much like I would guess the northern lights arc across the northern sky even though I have never personally witnessed the northern lights. All the European people come out at night to see this light show and listen to the music. They are one brotherhood,... um sisterhood,... um personhood,... um - hell they just get along with each other alright? Anyway it shows them at their best, unlike when they're playing soccer and shooting each other in the stands.

After the laser light show and musical review the entire population leaves the continent and either goes back to the parking lot to retrieve their cars or they ride the monorail back to their hotel. I highly recommend that everyone take a European vacation. But no matter what you should be careful to avoid France.

A Plagiarized Joke that didn't get anyone kicked out of NRARS

-by Unknown

On the 16th hole a golfer slices one deep into the woods. In looking to find his ball he comes upon a small man in a green suit who seems to be out cold. "Sorry about that pal" he said as he helped the little fellow up.

The little guy rubs his head a bit, clearly stunned from being hit on the head, and shakes it off. "Well," he said "I am a leprechaun. And though the technique was a bit odd you've caught me and I guess I owe you three wishes. So what'll ya have?"

The golfer thanks the leprechaun for the offer but declines. "I'm just glad you're ok" he said and then waved as he left to complete his game.

The leprechaun thinking that was awfully nice of the man decided to grant him three wishes anyway. First he'd make the man rich. Then he'd improve the man's golf game. Finally he'd give the man the most incredible sex life.

A year goes by when on the same 16th hole the same golfer slices deep into the woods and knocks out the same poor leprechaun. After being revived the leprechaun recognizes the golfer and asks him. "So how's the financial situation?" To which the golfer replied "It's been excellent. I've inherited over $2 million! The leprechaun just nods asking "And the game?" To which the man replies "This was my first and only shot in a year that missed the green!" The leprechaun was happy for the man and continued to nod asking "And how's the nightlife?" to which the man replied "Well, I've gotten laid twice this year." At which point the leprechaun fell off his stump in disbelief. "Only TWICE!"

"Well," considered the man "that's not bad for a priest in a small parish."

PAUL KONDIS PRESENTS...

Rotisserie League '97,

Good God, Y'all, What is it GOOD FOR??? --

Well, once again, we let the days build up in a pile, until it was officially "The Last Minute", and we had to resort to the tactic of re-submitting last month's round-up. The editors proved to be too adept, however we do disagree with their description of the perpetrator, believing 'plucky' to be a much better term than 'two-bit chiseler'.

So.

The Second Annual Loser Rotisserie League and Clam Bake has now passed the quarter pole, twenty-five cents being all that was left in the kitty after buying that nifty trophy last year and coughing up the fur ball. As such, this would be a good point for an in-depth analysis of the teams; their strengths, weaknesses, and possible acquisitions for the pennant drive. We will be here babbling away when you get done with it.

Oh.

Well, we'll try, though there are many questions at this point, the season having barely started and all. We will feature one team per week until we run out of fingers. This week's featured team: the Losers! The Losers, one of the Loser Rotisserie League and Auto Parts founding members, have chosen to compete this year as a completely different team called the Bobbitts. Like we couldn't figure out who they were, which is the Loser Rotisserie League and Barber Shop Quartet's answer to West Virginia. And their question was "Those people who were making fun of me, do they live around here?"

As best as we can tell, the team philosophy is to hold on until they can afford REAL losers, so they are, in the immortal words of bard Lou Reed, "saving their nickels and their dimes and their fucking quarters, until they have a nest egg." However, this plan hasn't really planned out, as they keep running off to the track with it. They had Silver Charm in the Belmont. Hey, anyone can pick a horse that finishes last by thirty lengths. At least I hope so. I'd hate to be the only one betting on those horses.

Next week's featured team: the Losers!

Hotemail to the Editor

Sire,

During the week that the "Send in the Clones" contest was announced, my wife told me an amazing fact. She said that a member of her church choir was on the actual President's cloning ethics committee. Upon hearing this astonishing revelation I promptly seized the initiative and ordered her to find out his reactions to the contest. The fateful Sunday morning arrived, and she dutifully quizzed him on the subject. He said he hadn't had a chance to read it yet. Undaunted, I xeroxed the contest and told her to give it to him at the next choir rehearsal, which she did. He didn't show up at church the next Sunday or at choir rehearsal the following Thursday. In fact she hasn't seen him since. I tell you, the things that go on in this town, I could write a book. - Jonathan Paul

Jonathan,

You bring up an important point. The President's commission decided that cloning of humans was a bad idea and has recommended a ban. This, my friend, as I'm sure you'll agree is an outrage. Where are the clones? Send in the clones. Don't bother - they're banned.... - ed.

Dear Mast Head Editor,

What kind of DORK do you think I am? I'm not the Acting Dork. I'm the Acting DORK.

- Jerry Pannullo / Acting DORK

Dear Jerry,

Thanks for that clarification. We at Depravda had not really delved much into what it obviously a complex breakdown of DORK society. The various strata and sub-branches of the Dork hierarchy may be beyond our comprehension. But quite frankly we just don't care. We don't create the news. We don't even report the news. All we're doing here is filling up space. And if it weren't for the fact that your letter was actually helping me to accomplish that goal this month then I'd be tearing you a new one in print right now. But hey, I needed the filler. So thanks for helping to clear up what has no doubt been bugging a lot of people who are losing sleep over the subject. Whatever it was - ed.

Dear Editor,

I thought I would just pass along this helpful tip to all the Losers. When pressed for time, you can minimize time spent on e-mail by observing trends in your in box. For example, never open messages from Mike Connaghan; instead, wait about 5 minutes for Joe Romm's sarcastic reply and read them both together.

- "Heloise" Arnold, Herndon

Heloise,

That's a good tip, but experts can also set up filters within their mail software to pre-filter anything from Connaghan or Romm directly to the trash bin. I find that this saves me an incredible amount of time. And I've just come to realize that may be why Dr. Style hasn't gotten his copy to us in several months. - ed.

Dear Editor,

After reading your generally shoddy May issue of Depravda, I was just wondering two things: One, since Dave Ferry seems to want OUT as Alert Reader, could I interview for the job? And, two, how much does it pay?

Dave Zarrow, Herndon

Dear Dave,

Well, not that we are planning to do anything to Alert Reader Laureate Ferry, but let's just suppose he were to shall we say go missing, what makes you think you're qualified for the job? -- ed.

Dear Editor,

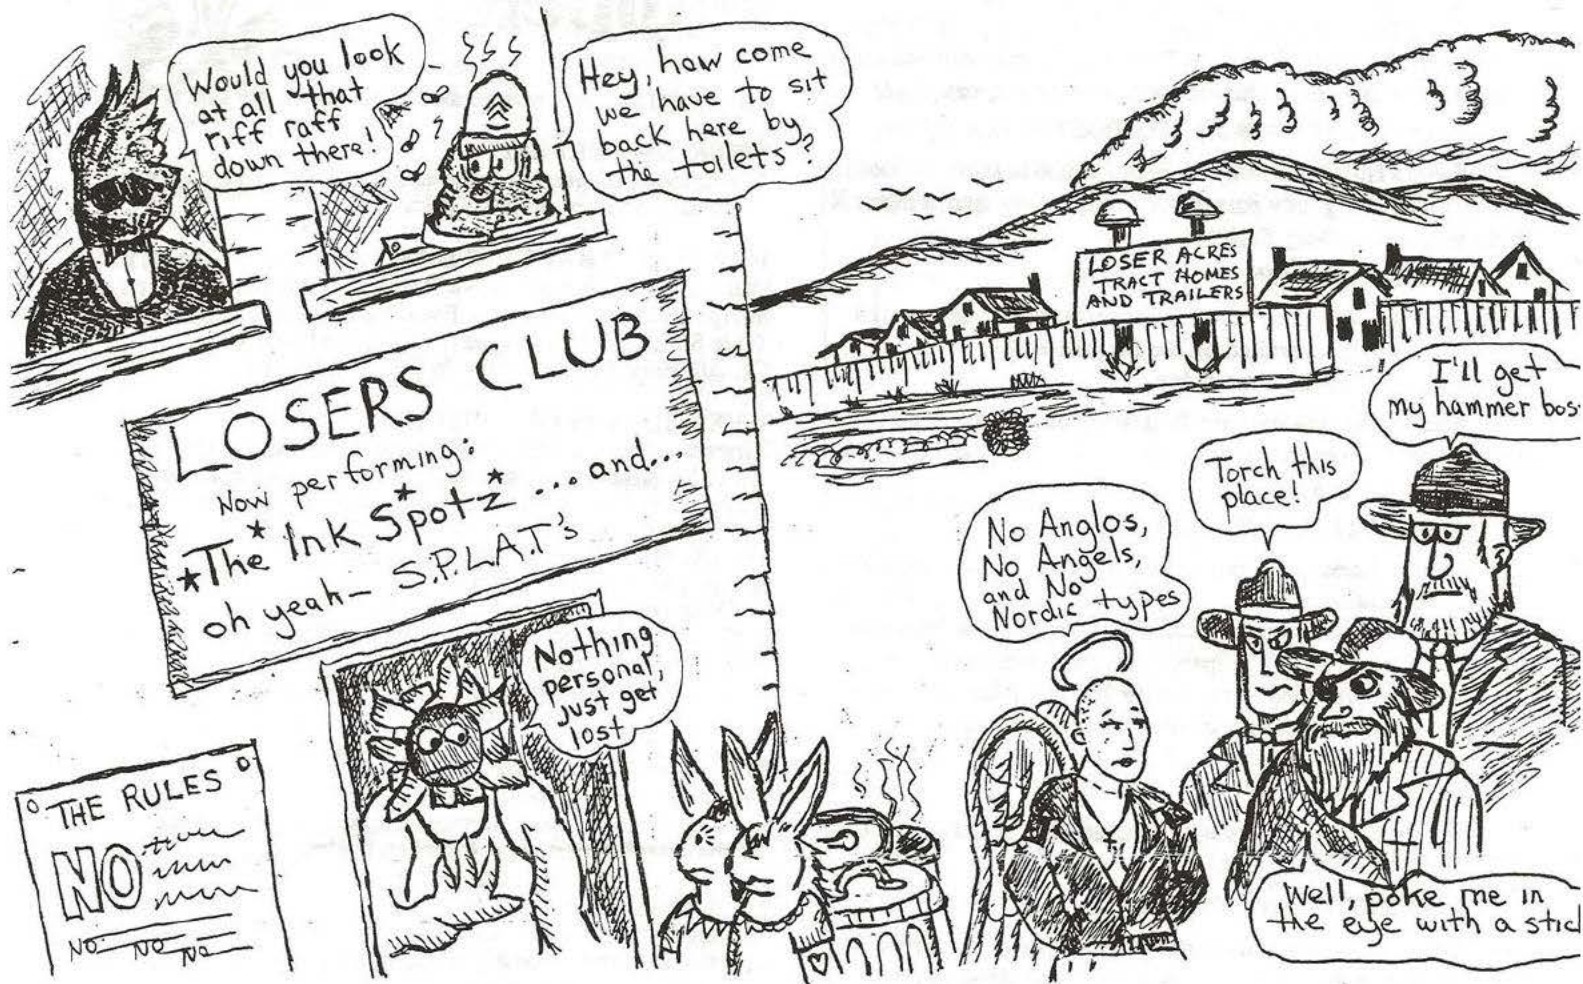

Well, since you asked, I couldn't help but notice a few mistakes in your May issue of Depravda. For instance, at the end of the first paragraph of the "Take My Motherboard....PLEASE!" story, reference is made to the "Almost Heaven" crack from that guy in East Virginia. Surely you can hire better writers than the hack responsible for this gross misquotation. The correct citation should be "Almost Haiti, West Virginia," which was, in the opinion of members of my immediate family, one of the finest entries I ever submitted to the Style Invitational. (A complete listing of my most wonderful entries is available from Zarco Enterprises. Send for our nearly free brochure.) Also, on page 1, in the Contents section, you indicate that "Peyton's Coyner" appears on page 7. Now, I love the clever, yet gentle, homespun humor of the official artist of the NRARS, but clearly the Rotisserie League Logos were the work of a deranged mind, a mind in far better shape than that of Mr. Coyner. My alertness of readershipness has helped me to determine that the logos were the work of a Mr. Don McCardell, who did the logos last year, too. Perhaps you should change "Peyton's Coyner" to "McCardell's Park" or something. Oh, and one last thing: There is no proper way to spell "Knanishu". So, do I get the job or not???? - Dave Zarrow, Herndon

Dear Dave,

*You want the job?! You WANT the job?!!
YOU CAN'T HANDLE THE JOB!!!! - ed.*

Prizes for this contest include and are limited to all the glory you can carry. Taxes, fees, and recovery from humiliation are the responsibility of the recipient.

10. God I thought they'd never leave. - Jan VerrEy.
9. Oh, gee, that nice Mary Olson fell off the balcony! How sad. Now who will get the Number One Emeritus slot in the Top Ten List? At least she didn't die in vain--she won the spitting contest.. - Sandra Hull
8. Mary Olsen [to no one in particular]: I've got to do more about controlling my poking.. - Jan VerrEy
7. C'mon, Steve! If it weren't for my back, I'd bungee jump off the balcony myself - Dave Genser
6. No Jan, I brought THIS silverware with me! - John Kammer
5. You have the right to remain silent,... hey, aren't you that Dave Zarrow guy from the Washington Post?
4. That's MY litterbox, hairball!! - Dick the Cat
3. So cats really do land feet first. But I guess it's a moot point after the third floor. - Mike Connaghan
2. "What a rare and unparalleled chance to moon the entire Alexandria horizon." - Jennifer Hart
1. Gee, I've never been on a penthouse balcony before! If you lean way out you can see all the waAAAAAIIIIHHHHH!! - Mary Olson

The March of Sophistry

WEEK 211: GIVE US THE BACKS OFF YOUR SHIRTS

Craig Ulander joins George Montgomery and Cindi Rae Caron in elite club of winning T-shirt designers. Anyone know what color they are? This author has yet to win one.

WEEK 212: DUMB AS THE POST

Sandra Hull gives away the crutches and regains her footing with first Win; gladly passes title as highest-ranked Winless X-chromo back to Meg Sullivan.

WEEK 213: A SIN OF THE TIMES

Boy: this writer not the only Loser without a clue--of 15 individuals who prevailed on the Illegal/Unethical thing, 8 appeared for the first time today.

Meanwhile, Michael the Tout is left out--Czar uses his "Kind of Foal" gimmick for third consecutive Year, but takes credit for the idea himself.

WEEK 214: ASK BACKWARDS IX

Looks like no one came up with anything for "Alfred E. Ginch" that did not reference "the usual gang of idiots," so everyone gets bounced on that one. E-mail consensus (at least what we heard) was that this Jeopardy was more difficult than most of the VIII that preceded it--that being the case, it should be no surprise that the Van Buren plate was awarded to Greg Arnold, who closed us all out before in the frustrating "Newtonian Philosophy" and the impossible "The Joke's On You."

Laurie Burdett debuts with 3, ejects Will Waters as Year-5 Rookie of the Year Presumptive.

WEEK 215: SON OF A PITCH

Leave the pretentious idiocy to the experts: for only about the second or third time ever, no new Losers debuted this Week. Pannullo's win his third, and first since he collected half of five shirts in trashing Don Imus, collateral contest, Week 114.

WEEK 216: WHAT KIND OF FOAL AM I?

Our Mike Hammer wuz robbed: the Czar used his contest idea for the third consecutive year, but failed to allocate the credit for it. Sorry, Mike: he has to say the magic words. But cousin Larry and Abominable Slowman win it all on first try. J. Neil Killalea returns for first hit since winning a shirt with Hussein's "offhanded" anti-stealing comment in Week 44, Adverb Publicity.

WEEK 217: NO QUESTION ABOUT IT

E. Carnahan pleased to breach 200 with career-high 6 in one Report; will take credit for one dumb question that he lifted from an uncle's letter received in 1967.

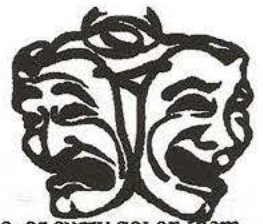

A. Spitzler was longest away for this week: he wrote "another annoying thing about being dead"--Andy Rooney's epitaph in Week 59.

R. Beland's third consecutive Ear probably a record.

WEEK 218: CALLING THE TOON

Winner Yourell the first Loser ever to admit living in Odenton, Maryland--we have had significantly more traffic from Conshohocken, Pennsylvania, for heaven's sake.

Wit Happens

Some good ones that missed the deadline, or curry got on them, or something.

WEEK 219: VERBOSITY

A born loser, Cleatus went through life Red Soxing one opportunity after another. (Maja Keech)

WEEK 216: WHAT KIND OF FOAL AM I?

Can't Hurry Love + Yeti = No Not Yeti (Fred Dawson)
Sharp Cat x Early Release = Escape Claws (Mike Hammer)
Table Stakes x Ajina = Bypass (Charlie Myers)
Captain Easy x Private Joe = In The Brig (Paul Styrene)

WEEK 215: SON OF A PITCH

Kleenex Tomothy Leary is gone but he left behind this tissue, full of his effluvia, his essence, his DNA. Look closely and you will see tiny brain cells. Waste not--want snot? (Chuck Smith)

WEEK 214: ASK BACKWARDS IX

A: Janet Reno Pez Dispenser.

Q: What replaced the ill-conceived and controversial Janet Reno fireball candy dispenser? (Peyton Coyner)

A: Larry, Curly and Moses.

Q: What is the comedy team that Old Testament women simply do not get? (Sue Lin Chong)

WEEK 210: RANDOM MEMO

Memo to: Senator Exon.

Message: It's www.penthousemag.com/; you inadvertently left off the "mag". Try it now. (Stephen Dudzik)

Memo to: Wilt Chamberlain

From: Monique

Message: "Don't worry about last night. It happens to all men occasionally, and it doesn't mean anything." (Sarah Worcester)

Memo to: John Kennedy, Jr.

Message: The V.D. Clinic called and wants to know if you are allergic to penicillin. (Joseph Romm)

WEEK 209: WE NEED SOME SEASONING

Clarence Thomas again caught wearing nothing under his robe. (Kevin Cuddihy)

Urine no longer freezes on contact with the monuments. (Tommy Litz)

WEEK 208: SEND IN THE CLONES

Could I claim my clone as a dependent on my '96 tax return and if not, how do I go about amending my return? (Jean Sorensen)

WEEK 207: TIED TO BE FIT

Aldrich Ames and noose: You wouldn't stick your neck out for either of them. (Jonathan Paul)

WEEK 203: CAN IT GET MUCH VERSE?

Oh, Valentine! My funny little Valentine.

Yeah, the handcuff thing was kind of fun.

As was dressing up like a nun.

But, now you've pulled out a cat-o-nine,

And you want to do WHAT with that porcupine?

Forget it, babe; I've taken the pledge.

No more City Paper personal ads. (David Genser)

WEEK 201: THE ELEMENTS OF STYLE

Element: Scrotum

Symbol: Xy

Physical properties: Unstable. Hardness varies. Malleable and ductile, but loses much of its strength when manipulated. Low boiling point.

Chemical properties: Bonds readily, but seldom in any state resembling permanence. (Charlie Steinhice)

New and Imporved Stats Page, as of the Report from Week 219

The left chart below lists all contestants ranked in the Top 50 for Year 5. Career stats are added, for newer Losers who do not yet appear on the Career list, at right. That chart lists the top 50 scorers over all Years.

LID: Loser ID—the order in which the various Losers made their first print appearance.

Dbu: Debut—Week in which you made your first appearance.

Rk: Rank, in Year 5 or overall.

+/-: Change in rank since May issue, Year 5 or overall. "New" indicates first appearance on chart.

Pts: Points—print appearances, Year 5 or overall.

Cons: Consistency—average points per Week since your Debut (no Week 64), Year 5 or overall.

Pace: Number of Year-5 Points you will have at the end of Year 5, if this keeps up.

As always, each Loser's enlightened self-interest is our best quality check, and we are proud to receive your complaints at carns@erols.com.

HEY LOSER! Is Your Subscription About to Expire?

Since I'm not checking any boxes you'll need to find another way to tell. One simple indicator is the new and improved mailing label. Simply follow the arrow to the right of this box. It points to the expiration date of your status, the most common of which is PIF (paid in full). When the expiration date arrives, you'll notice that your subscription fails to arrive in your mail. It's time to renew!

Sunday, July 6th

Dear Editor/Publisher,

I have made reservations for the July DC brekkie at the Hotel Washington, Two Continents Restaurant in DC.

Time: 9am, reservation name: Dudzik;

Cost: about $8.00 for the breakfast bar.

location: 15th and Pennsylvania Ave.

Parking: around the hotel or try the Ellipse area.

Rooftop cafe afterwards which opens at 11am
(I think).

Sunday, August 3rd

Details to be announced in the next exciting issue of Depravda
