Kaczynski Fingers Accomplis

Another Crazy Mad-Man Identified in Unabomber Attacks

College park, Md.- FBI authorities revealed today that Ted Kazinski named local humorist Elden Carnahan not only as his accompis in the various Unabomber attacks, but also as the mastermind behind the entire operation. "Hell, I lived in a shack with nothing to eat but crickets and ants for God sakes" said Kazinski. The FBI believes however that Carnahan had access to steak dinners, mashed potatoes and other culinary delights including monthly breakfast buffets.

The FBI was thrilled to release the news stating "We're still pretty ticked he got off for the murder of that Fuller woman a year back. This time we've planted so much evidence that only the most incompetent investigator could possibly miss it. It's obvious from his picture (above) that he's guilty and this time we're taking him down."

The FBI, ATF, National Guard, and several local police units are believed to be preparing for a lengthy standoff with Carnahan. Units of armed guards are surrounding his Laurel complex awaiting his return from work so he can hole himself up. The Krispy Kreme doughnut truck is reportedly mobilizing to the scene and expects to increase sales 30-60% this month alone.

Front Page Not What it Used to Be

Leading Scientists Baffled

Scientists have discovered, using advanced spectral analysis and an ancient analytical tool known as "reading", that the front page of Depravda is "not what it used to be." As one expert put it, "Every month, there is, like, a totally different article on that page. It's really sad."

At a loss to explain the phenomenon, several theories have sprouted, and are being carefully watered and pruned to ensure the best growth. At the end of two weeks, they will be evaluated for quality of foliage, leaf shape, and root structure. Then they will be dried and cured, after which they will be tested for smoking-induced highs.

One of these was thrown out by Jennifer Hart, Arlington, a leading authority on the front page of Depravda. "I believe this is similar to the flu, where a different strain is made available for public consumption every year via flu shots, and at such reasonable prices!" This theory has its backers, including Greg Arnold, however several prominent experts disagree. As Tom Witte puts it, "I disagree." Greg Arnold supports this view.

Sandra Hull has done much experimenting on this topic, and believes that there is some sort of chemical reaction involved, probably involving a bottle of pepper vodka. Not to be outdone, Elden Carnahan has done some more basic experimenting, cutting the individual words out the article, and pasting them on a piece of paper in a different order, in effect changing the meaning of the original article altogether. His tests show that the new version will successfully scare a key witness from testifying, whereas the original format produces only a mild chuckle. Greg Arnold has told us that both of these theories have merit, and that he agrees with them both. We are beginning to suspect that Greg Arnold is trying to get rid of us.

Steve Dudzik has carried Elden's experiments further, cutting out each letter individually, sorting alphabetically (keeping capital letters separate from small), placing each resulting group into used film containers, and throwing them all away, generally in different trash cans on different

T. Witte, G. Arnold Come to Blows at Holiday Party

Hostess Appalled as Losers Egg Participants On

Tom Witte

College Park, Md - In what can only be described as an "explosive confrontation" Tom Witte and Greg Arnold got into a major fight at the Loser holiday gathering. Promoters have been calling it "The Grapple in the Capitol" and are trying to collect ticket revenues even though the event was spontaneous and has long since transpired.

Jan VerrEy was an eye witness to the event and gives this detailed accounting: "Tom clearly started it, although if you ask me it's been brewing for some time.

Greg Arnold

But the fight at Maja's began when he shrugged his shoulders. That set Greg right off. Arnold responded by turning his head slightly to the left and at that point there was no stopping things. Witte raised his eyebrow, or maybe he raised them both, I'm not entirely sure now - it all happened so fast. Greg then raised his left hand and scratched behind his ear. This enraged Tom who lifted a glass of pepper-vodka to his lips and took a drink. Not to be out-done Arnold removed a cookie from a plate and ate it. It was a pretty ugly scene. You could tell there was no love lost between these two."

"Witte's been talkin' trash for a long time now, he's constantly mouthing off" said one Arlington resident and currently reigning Loser of the Year who wished to remain anonymous. Another Arlington resident who also wished to remain anonymous and whose name rhymes with "lull" quickly rose to Witte's defense and slandered Arnold by questioning his lineage and then making disparaging remarks about his home town Herndon Va. - the town that is full of wit.

Eventually both men left the party, but if looks could kill then everyone at the house would have been left dead that evening in a massacre worse than the famous Boston massacre but without the political ramifications nor opportunities for coverage in the history books. Not to mention that the police would have had a difficult time figuring out what the hell had transpired. Meanwhile we at Depravda are trying to enlist the two pugilists for a new feature - Point / Counterpoint in which they will argue in print about a different topic each month. Either that or we'd sure like to get a cut of the take at Grapple 2 - The Thunda in the Rotunda. Besides, except for a goofy haircut and millions of dollars, what does Don King have that we don't?

days. He views his results as "extremely positive", reporting that so far, none of the original articles have turned up again around his apartment.

Meanwhile, careful analysis by Josef Romm revealed that Depravda was made up of particles so small they can not be seen by the naked eye. By clothing his eyes Josef was able to determine that quarks, neptons, neucleotides, riptides and electrons all join together as if in a microscopic orgy, to compose the print and paper fibres of the newsletter. If bombarded by anti-protons the entire issue could go up in an explosion the size of King Kong - that is the real King Kong, not the model. Still the Nucular Regulatory Commission refuses to take action, presumably out of fear of being ridiculed for having their name spelled wrong.

PAUL KONDIS PRESENTS...

Rotisserie League '97,

Good God, Y'all, What is it GOOD FOR??? --

The beginning of the year dawned, sending the Loser Rotisserie League and Unauthorized Biography by Kitty Kelly team owners scurrying off to Hechingers to stock up on all the supplies they would need to make sturdy resolutions that would last well into the New Year, barring an act of God or Loser Happy Hour.

While waiting for the cement to dry, many set out to do the "worst thing they have ever done" so that it would be fresh in their minds should the subject ever come up. For this, many descended on E.J.'s Landing in College Park for brunch and just puttering around. One owner, however, became confused about the concept of a "pool table", and by the time he could be stopped, had scraped most of the "algae" off. Horrified, the owners used the excuse to scuttle off to the Winter Meeting without paying their checks.

During the Winter Meetings - which took place during the winter, hence the name - there was a brief discussion on having a Loser Dead Pool, but the idea was dropped when Chuck Smith wouldn't put the spoon down. Other items discussed during the winter meetings included expansion, free agency, salary caps, interleague play, and rum punch recipes. Interleague play had to be shelved after a brief search turned up no other leagues doing anything remotely similar, though an offer was made to play a series between our tournament winner and the winner of the World Series. Major League Baseball has yet to respond, perhaps because they'd like to wrap up the television contract before any formal announcement is made.

It is entirely possible that the winter meetings were discussed last issue. Let us just take a minute to point out that:

- * "Winter meetings" is plural
- * The owners don't like to drink alone.
- * It is fully expected that, in the next round of winter meetings, the subject of a commissioner will be tackled, along with the commissioner himself, if he tries to leave without tipping the waitress again.

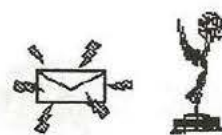

One more minor point that may prove to be relevant in the coming month: I am getting a haircut tonight. Inside information indicates that it will look "snappy" and "pert".

Hotemail to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Am I to understand that the position of Depravda Editor is in actuality an ill-paying job? I would have figured that with the exorbitant prices you charge for a yearly subscription that you'd be doing quite well. But if it's true that the position pays so poorly, why on earth do you keep doing the job?

- Concerned in Mt. Vernon

Dear Concerned,

Yes it's true the position pays poorly. While technically I do get to skim profits off the top, according to his contract Dave Zar-row gets to skim first and that greedy SOB doesn't really leave anything for me. As to your second question, I do this out of a sense of duty to the NRARS, because it is fun to do, and for the fringe benefits. - ed.

Dear Editor,

I didn't realize that Depravda had a wake-up call service for Sunday mornings. Do you guys charge extra for this service or is it included in the subscription?

- Little Suzy

Dear Suzy,

This is a new service we are currently offering on a limited test basis. If you or others would like to apply for participation please send a self-addressed signed picture of yourself in slinky eveningwear to Depravda Wake-up Call c/o Depravda publications at the address on the back on the newsletter. - ed.

Dear Editor-in-heat,

Now that Roving Reporter Madame "Xandra" Hull has made my OBGYN blush with her candidly enlightening and periodically amusing article, I suppose your readership can expect more of the same. Perhaps recipes for a woman's placebo or other discharges? I look forward to her coverage of men's museums like the "Crux Hall of Jock Straps" or the "Philly Phore-skin Collection". I think Xandra has found her niche at last. Talent like that should not be wasted on web pages.

Yours in Precious Bodily Fluids, - General Nausea

Dear Editor,

Since I lost to Dave Ferry as Alert Reader but am now 2 for 2 on winning Bad Poetry contests, is there room on the Depravda Masthead for a Poet Laureate? And do you actually need some bad poems, or will this be one of those government programs in which I'm compensated for not writing poems?

- Charlie Steinhice

Charlie, et. al.,

I don't understand what it is with you guys wanting your names on the Depravda masthead. I personally have had my name there for over a year and I still don't see [many] young girls throwing their panties toward me at the Depravda brunches nor at my other myriad [public] appearances. So if it isn't working for me, what chance do you have? In any case as this does seem to be in high demand [space on the masthead] I am willing to sell and or barter the space to anyone who can convince me their name ought to be there. - ed.

To the Editor,

In the December issue of The Amazing Office Products Man, the straight-haired blonde is wearing a shift, then in the "WHOOMPH!" panel, suddenly is also wearing slacks. In the axe scene, her dress has buttons. Even with all the costume changes, I know that this is not meant to depict me, since that skirt is WAY not short enough.

- Dr. H<sup>2</sup>, Washington DC.

Dear Dr. H<sup>2</sup>

Let me assure you that the depictions in Office Products Man were quite clear and that there was no mistaking who was supposed to be who. This was done in order to avoid confusion. Secondly the costume changes to which you allude were necessary when the model posing for the WHOOMPH frame noticed I was spending the entire hour looking up her dress instead of drawing anything. I can sometimes get easily distracted that way. In any case she refused to continue unless she was allowed to wear slacks for that particular frame. This has caused us to begin recruiting for another model. Any leads would be appreciated The pay is lousy. - ed.

Sirs,

You must think you're pretty clever, adding curses to my "Top Ten" entry (Dec.) I hope the readers realize I would never stoop to filthy talk to strengthen an entry's impact. And you c*cks*ck*rs<sup>1</sup> actually shrunk the only cartoon I've ever created that billed itself as "colossal"! And gave me no credit for my 'Ell in lamb pun. I can't wait to see how you deal with this month's cartoon.

Yours in Style - Peyton

Sketch of Diana's Crash Indicated 2nd Car - by Paul Kondis

Within hours of the accident that killed Princess Diana, French investigators believed a second car might have been involved in the crash, the first official sketch of the scene shows. The diagram, obtained by the Associated Press, was made August 31, the day the crash occurred along the Seine River, and clearly shows a "monster truck" driving over the hood of the limousine that Princess Diana and her boyfriend, Dodi Fayed, were riding in. The truck, colored slate gray and with 5-foot tires of the type usually seen at Monster Truck and Tractor pulls, appeared to have been manufactured by "Tonka" and have a front grill that resembled sharks teeth holding a severed human leg. Also apparent from the sketch was that a very large creature, resembling the good monster character Godzilla from the movies, was in the tunnel, holding what appeared to be the Eiffel Tower. The Eiffel Tower has not been reported missing. Investigators are puzzled by a bizarre structure, resembling a series of concentric squares with a jagged roof and a squiggly wing, that appears to the right of the crash scene. Authorities have not been able to locate such a structure in the area.

Sure the Duelling Losers were playing, but was there some other engagement we weren't aware of?

Mike Hammer refuses to acknowledge he knows these people.

Another joke by Anonymous

(actually Peyton sent this one in but we're not giving him credit)

Three geezers are sitting around the nursing home, bitching about body disfunction as usual. The first says, "I can't get a good piss anymore. Ever since I hit my seventies, I have to get up two or three times a night, and it always hurts."

The second replies, "Well, I can't get a good bowel movement. I seem to always be either constipated or diarrhetic, and most times it burns, too. Your eighties will be worse, believe me!"

The third guy just smiles. "Heck, I'm in my nineties and I don't have any of those problems. Every morning at 6:45 sharp I take a good, long leak. Always a strong, yellow stream and always on time. And promptly at 7:30 I have a bowel movement. Black and hard, no trouble. It's been like clockwork for years!

...Course it IS usually 8:15 before I wake up."

Volunteers at the Loser Winter Solstice Holiday festival try a new liquid form of pepper-spray designed to keep criminals at bay. Presumably criminals would be given the drink at prison happy hours. Reactions to the beverage were all 'enthusiastic' to say the least.

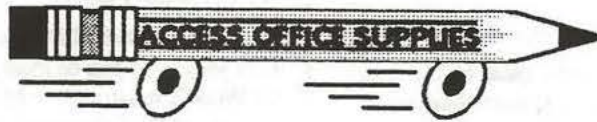

Meanwhile Paul Kondis inadvertently revealed "Deep Boots", his hidden source for much of the inside information he's been obtaining for the Loser rotisserie league articles. So long as the source remains blissfully unaware that the season ended weeks ago we are confident that Paul will keep on cranking out the articles.

Meanwhile, the Depravda editor was busy offending party-goers with his depictions of Losers in the Buff. Whether these images were from his warped imagination or whether some Losers actually posed for the drawings is uncertain. What is clear is that the Joe Romm picture probably won't be a big seller.

Drs. Style

Dear Drs. Style.

I can't help but notice that the food they serve at those NRARS brunches is loaded with fat and cholesterol. Is this bad for me? Should I be concerned? What can I do to prevent my arteries from clogging after one of these meals?

- Anonymous in Herndon

Dear Anonymous in Herndon:

First of all, isn't your signature a bit redundant? (If that is your real name). But we digress. Given how chunky people are in Herndon, we figured the Loser brunches were low cal meals for you. Just do what people in Gaithersburg do -- when it's time to pay the tab, just stand up, stretch, and jog around the block. When (or if) you return, the tab is always paid in full! If that doesn't work, try taking two grams of melatonin, one hour before meals. (Actually, we think you should be eating this type of food, because we have placed the town of Herndon in our "dead pool."

Dear Drs. Style,

My lawyers want me to plead insanity, but I'm as sane as the next person, particularly if the next person is Mike Connaghan. Hell I'm probably more sane than he is. Sure I sent letter bombs to people, but he expected people to help him move to Mt. Vernon. Now you tell me who's crazy!

Teddy K.

Dear Teddy K.:

Next time, try using Joe Romm's underwear - it's extra strength. With your lawyers wanting you to plead insanity, that's like the pot calling the kettle black. We presume this plea would be after you pay your legal bill. It is interesting that you raise Mike Connaghan's name, as there are eerie parallels between you two:

1. There are nine letters in Kaczynski and nine letters in Connaghan.
2. Both of you are criminally insane.
3. Your tastes in home decor are strikingly similar.
4. Kennedy had a secretary named Lincoln, Lincoln had a secretary named Kennedy.

Dear Drs. Style.

With all these recent accidents is it really safe for politicians to ski in the woods?

- Curious in Alexandria

Dear Curious in Alexandria:

First of all, what makes you think these are accidents? Everyone knows that Vincent Foster really hit a tree while skiing and that his body was later moved to Ft. Marcy (this is irrefutable and never mind that he died in July). Other frightening skiing accidents include the deaths of Princess Diana, Marilyn Monroe, the crash of TWA flight 800, and the Titanic. You really have to start watching the "X-Files" more.

Dear Drs. Style:

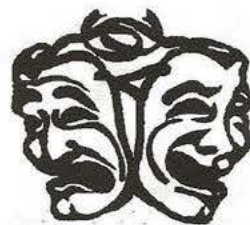

Was caulk invented by Caucasians? What did the Asians do? I have a steak dinner riding on this.

John Hechinger

Dear John Hechinger:

With all the problems facing this world -- celebrities dying in skiing accidents, people felled in Herndon by arteriosclerosis, and the one-half price Chicken McNuggets on sale the week after the Hong Kong poultry extermination -- you have some nerve asking this question. Doctors Style recommend skipping the steak dinner and instead get your fat and cholesterol at the February Loser brunch.

New and Improved Stats Page, as of the Report from Week 249

LID: Loser ID—the order in which the various Losers made their first print appearance.

Dbu: Debut—Week in which you made your first appearance.

Rk: Rank. Year-5 rank is position among 328 Losers so far this Year; Career rank is position among 1891 Losers appearing since Week 1.

Ws: Wins. Ps: Pens awarded for 1st Runner-Up. Shs: Shirts awarded for other Runner-Ups.

Stks: Bumperstickers awarded for Honorable Mentions. Es: Ears No One Reads.

+/-: Change in rank since December issue.

Pts: Points—print appearances, Year 5 or overall.

Cons: Consistency—average points per Week since your Debut (no Week 64), Year 5 or overall.

Pace: Number of Year-5 Points you will have at the end of Year 5, if this keeps up.

As always, each Loser's enlightened self-interest is our best quality check, and we are proud to receive your complaints at carns@erols.com.

HEY LOSER! Is Your Subscription About to Expire?

Since I'm not checking any boxes you'll need to find another way to tell. One simple indicator is the new and improved mailing label. Simply follow the arrow to the right of this box. It points to the expiration date of your status, the most common of which is PIF (paid in full). When the expiration date arrives, you'll notice that your subscription fails to arrive in your mail. It's time to renew!
